Position Summary

The Portage County Health District (PCHD) works to protect and improve the health and well-being of all residents through prevention, education, partnerships, and data driven public health programs.

We are seeking a collaborative and experienced public health leader to serve as our Director of Environmental Health.

The Director of Environmental Health provides leadership, oversight, and strategic direction for environmental health programs at the Portage County Health District. This position supervises environmental health staff, manages division operations and budgets, and works closely with PCHD leadership, community partners, and regulatory agencies to ensure the delivery of high-quality environmental health services.

The Director serves as a key member of the agency leadership team and helps identify emerging community environmental health needs while implementing programs aligned with the agency mission.

Job Description:

- Provide leadership and management of environmental health programs in accordance with State of Ohio regulations and public health best practices.
- Supervise environmental health staff including hiring recommendations, training, work assignments, performance evaluations, and professional development.
- Manage division budgets and assist in developing cost methodologies to support program operations.
- Provide technical expertise and guidance to the Health Commissioner, local governments, businesses, and community stakeholders on environmental health issues.
- Identify community environmental health needs and implement data driven programs and solutions.
- Assist staff with inspections and environmental health investigations as needed.
- Support and contribute to Portage County Health District initiatives and public health programs and services, including program implementation, compliance, and reporting as applicable.
